Rather Free Mannered.

Maurice Hewlett writes of the people of Cortado, the Italian town where Boccaccio was born and lived: "Their women are handsome, as they ought to be, with green eyes, dusky skins, fairly tanned hair. They carry themselves bolt upright, like all mountaineers, but with better reason than most for their figures are remarkable. The 2000 strong gay songs, are happy and fresh-mannered, and if Boccaccio is not at the bottom of it the mischief is I saw here what I have never seen elsewhere in all long Italy, a man stop and kiss a girl in open street. No offense, either. He was a baker who came—a floury amoroso—saw and considered the head of her industrious head and stooped and kissed her as she sat sewing at her door. Her lovers and acquaintances about her saw nothing amiss, nor was she at all put out. After so flagrant an achievement the madcap went a whole progress of gallantry down the street, none resenting his freedom. He danced with one good wife, chuckled another's chin and lifted a third bodily into the air, singing all the while."

The Prescription Bath.

The bath house at each of the famous health resorts of Europe is the most imposing building in town, with stately facade and inviting entrance. Inside are long corridors, ladies to the right and gentlemen to the left, lined with dozens of little cell-like rooms, each containing a bathtub, a couch and a thermometer. At the door is a strong armed masseur. There is much conferring between the doctor and this attendant, repeated testing of temperatures and mixtures of water in the tub. After the patient gets into his tub the doctor waits outside the door, watch in hand, timing the immersion. Then the masseur gets to work with vigorous rubbing, still timed by the doctor. Finally the patient appears dressed and refreshed. The doctor talks diplomatically on favorite symptoms, sympathizes a little, flatters a little more and, with a sweeping bow, hands his victim into a carriage. —Everybody's Magazine.

The "Language of Music."

The best chamber music, like the finest symphonic music, is a sort of transcendental language, which affects the hearer somewhat in the same way as the study of astronomy or the higher mathematics their ardent devotees. It suggests the ineffable and the infinite perhaps more vividly than any other form of art. It also evokes many other images and thoughts of a definite nature, but in no two cases are these mental pictures identical. A passage suggesting a sunset to one hearer may call up a battle scene to another. But no reasonable person wishes to force his picture on his neighbor, especially as the same passage may visualize itself differently to the same hearer on different occasions. —From "Divisions of a Music Lover."

Tatar and Tartar.

"Tartar" is a word which gives an illustration of etymology gone astray. The name "Tatar" (as it is correctly spelled) is really derived from a Turanian root meaning "to stretch," and hence "to draw the bow" or "to pitch tents." But when the hordes of Tatars burst upon eastern Europe from the Asiatic steppes in the thirteenth century the minds of students turned to the ninth chapter of Revelation. The Tatar invasion was interpreted as a fulfillment of the prediction of the opening of the bottomless pit. A contemporary chronicler writes of "this detestable satanic people issuing forth like demons let loose from Tartarus, so that they are fitly named Tartari." Thus the misconception took root.

Albinos.

The human species offers frequent examples of individuals attacked by albinism. It is found oftentimes among men of the black race. White albinos have skin of a peculiar paleness, blond hair, white or colorless beard, pink lips and red pupils. The negro albino has skin of variable aspect. In some cases it is white as milk, and in others it is like wax, or, rather, resembles the hue of a corpse.

Easy Timekeeping.

Captain Cuttle's famous watch, which would keep "correct" time only by various shakings and shufflings of the hands during the day, is matched by a Yorkshireman's clock. He resented the imputation that there was anything wrong with it. "It goes reet eneu for him that knau how t' read it," he said. "When its hands are at 12, it strikes 2, and then Aw knau it's half past 7."

Wise Counsel.

"Don't be too anxious to get a husband," said the wise matron. "Don't go around hunting for one." "Think I should just sit down and wait for one, eh?" replied the maiden. "Yes, for you'll sit up and wait for one often enough after you've got him." —Philadelphia Ledger.

Corroborated.

Jones—It is just impossible for me to keep a lead pencil. People are always borrowing, you know, and they always forget to return. Brown—Why, I never have any trouble. See, I've got a whole vest pocketful of pencils. Jones—Doesn't that prove just what I said? —Boston Transcript.

Mutual Happiness.

"Can you forgive me and love me still?" said the newly made bride, "when I confess that my teeth are artificial?" "Thank heaven!" cried the groom as he snatched off his wig. "Now I can cool my head."

The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible. —Bovee.
